INTRODUCTION

KCR Engineering is privately-operated, specialising in supplementary labour solutions to the utilities, maintenance, mining and infrastructure sectors in Western Australia.

Founded in 2019 by Kiyoung Choi, KCR Engineering was built with the purpose to assist local fabrication companies who struggled with the labour shortages.

Kiyoung's 20 years experience in the industry allows KCR to establish a service that understands the needs of clients. His vision and hence the companies vision is to be our client's supplier of choice in the provision of our services and we are dedicated to providing our clients with complete, practical and flexible solutions to enhance their productivity and operational performance.

Our individualised approach enables us to be entrenched in the systems, ideals, planning and our client's ways of working. We intend to create and deliver tailored solutions to add real value to our clients business.
